Little Fun Palace Nomadic School

Open Call | Alpeggio

Deadline: 22 July 2020

Little Fun Palace becomes a Nomadic School questioning how space produces reality. Its aim is to experiment new forms of learning and sharing-knowledge around Performing Arts. Considering space and landscape as aesthetic territories that have political implications without using the words of politics, the Nomadic School problematizes the Performing Arts by interacting with other disciplines such as Natural Sciences, Architecture and Anthropology. Through workshops, experiments, meetings and micro-performances, participants will be encouraged to reconsider their centrality and periphery within a shared space such as the stage.

Where

Little Fun Palace Nomadic School takes place at 1600m above sea level. The caravan will be in Viote on Mount Bondone, a natural biotope in Trentino - South Tyrol and a mountain pasture area for sheeps and cows. Taking place in the middle of the Alpine landscape, life and study will not be detached and participants will camp in the Alpine Botanical Garden of MUSE - Science Museum. By immersing totally in the alpine landscape, Little Fun Palace Nomadic School leaves behind the representative distance cultivated by academic and artistic institutions.

When

Little Fun Palace Nomadic School takes place from 27 to 30 august 2020 and it's a full-time participation.

Candidates

The Open Call is addressed to anyone interested in the production and perception of space. People from disciplines such as theatre, dance, architecture, geography, anthropology, philosophy, natural sciences, literature, music, visual arts and design can participate. 12 participants will be selected and will be guaranteed board and lodging for the entire period.

Mentors

The selected participants will share the Nomadic School with some mentors who, respecting their practices, will tackle the role of space and how it produces reality. Mentors are:
