Little Fun Palace Nomadic School 2021

Open Call | Alpeggio

Deadline prorogued: 28 July 2021

Little Fun Palace is back as a Nomadic School questioning how space produces reality. Aiming to experiment new forms of learning and sharing-knowledge around Performing Arts, the Nomadic School considers space and landscape as aesthetic territories that have political implications without using the words of politics. It problematizes the Performing Arts by interacting with other disciplines such as Natural Sciences, Architecture and Anthropology. Through workshops, experiments, meetings and micro-performances, participants will be encouraged to reconsider their centrality and periphery within a shared space such as the stage.

Where

Little Fun Palace Nomadic School takes place at 1600m above sea level. For the second year in a row the caravan will be in Viote on Mount Bondone, a natural biotope in Trentino - South Tyrol and a mountain pasture area for sheeps and cows. Taking place in the middle of the Alpine landscape, life and study will not be detached and participants will camp at the Vigolo alpine hut, near the Alpine Botanical Garden of MUSE - Science Museum. By immersing totally in the alpine landscape, Little Fun Palace Nomadic School leaves behind the representative distance cultivated by academic and artistic institutions.
